Course

FIN-490 - Finance Capstone

The Finance Capstone serves as the culminating experience for finance majors, integrating knowledge and skills developed throughout the program. Students apply financial theory, analytical tools, and ethical decision-making frameworks to solve complex, real-world financial problems. Working individually and in teams, students conduct comprehensive financial analyses, develop investment and corporate finance strategies, and present their findings to faculty and industry professionals. The course emphasizes strategic thinking, data-driven decision-making, and professional communication to prepare students for success in finance careers or graduate study.
